MILAN, Italy — Italy's fall hunting season opened Sunday. Four men were shot to death, two heart attacks and more than 30 were wounded.

Police said they fined 8,000 hunters who didn't have licences and arrested three for mistreatment of bird dogs.

Nearly one million hunters took to the fields and forests for the season on hares, pheasant, quail, snipe and other birds which lasts until mid-December GETAFE, Spain-Luis "The Conceited" Rios, Spain's first parachuting torero, planned to jump into the bullring, shed his chute harness and get down to earnest bullfighting. On his first jump Sunday he missed his mark by a mile—and landed in the city dump.

MACON, Ga.—When city police began chasing a car driven by 20-year-old Eddie Norris Sunday, they planned to give him ticket for making an improper turn.

The chase lasted slightly longer than police had intended. When it ended with Norris' car smashed into a tree, the officers decided one ticket wasn't enough. They gave him 28 citations.

The charges included five counts of running stop signs,

seven counts of running red lights, driving under the influence of intoxicants, driving on the wrong side of the road, no driver's licence, improper licence plates, seven counts of speeding, including one for going 110 m.p.h. in a 35-mile-an-hour zone, and making an improper turn.

WARMINISTER, England-"The Thing" was back haunting Warminister Sunday night. A group of schoolboys who said they saw it described it as bigger and more 'orrible than ever. Although a packed public meeting of 600 worried townspeo ple met Friday and diagnosed a mysterious unidentified flying object as "a lot of baloney," Warministerians said they spotted it in the sky again last night.

Some 90 residents of this town of 6,000 population, incluing a party of schoolboys, have been keeping an all-night vigil.

"In a blinding flash of light it seemed to explode and divide into two brighter portions;" said 14-year-old observer Christopher Robinson. "Either that or the first portion simply vanished and was replaced by two others above.

The Thing, which other observers claim lights up, emits weird noises and attacks with "savage soundwaves" has frightened Warminister for eight months.

MACON, Ga.—When city police began chasing a car driven by 20-year-old Eddie Norris Sunday, they planned to give him ticket for making an improper turn.

The chase lasted slightly longer than police had intended. When it ended with Norris' car smashed into a large, the officers decided one ticket wasn't enough. They gave him 28 citations.

The charges included five counts of running stop signs,

seven counts of running red lights, driving under the influence of intoxicants, driving on the wrong side of the road, no driver's licence, improper licence plates, seven counts of speeding, including one for going 110 m.p.h. in a 35-mile-an-hour zone, and making an improper turn.

YARMOUTH, England—Vacationers grimaced and feared the worst Sunday when a column of 200 'teen-age Mods pulled into town, near the site of previous battles with another 'teenement known as the Rockers.

it in the sky again last night.

Some 90 residents of this town of 6,000 population, include ing a party of schoolboys, have been keeping an all-night vigil.

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) - The lesson of Gemini 5 is that nature can build one man better than 10,000 men can build one machine.

To medical doctors, it is a delight. To space engineers, it is disappointing.

To one and all, it is a puzzling reversal of what they had expected when, eight years ago, it became evident man was going into space.

The human body, whether it Charles Conrad or a coal miner or a grocery clerk, is basically a fragile thing. It cannot long stand freezing temperatures. It withers in heat. It gets tired. It ecomes hungary or thirsty. A machine such as the Gemini

5 capsule, on the other hand, is a sort of engineering marvel built to take temperatures from near absolute zero to 3,000 degrees fahrenheit, shocks that perhaps would jolt a tank apart, particles of space "dust" that hit like bullets.

But when they returned after 190 hours 56 minutes in space astronauts Cooper and Conrad were quite healthy.

The spacecraft was crippled

Experts such as Dr. Charles Berry, astronaut physician, are quite willing to predict from the medical viewpoint that men-at least those with the initial training and health of Cooper and Conrad-are ready to get to the moon and back.

The first man to the moon flight will come no earlier that 1968 or 1969, however, because the machines are vet to be per-

GEMINI 5 NO LEMON EXPERT SAYS SOURL

Within hours of splashdown yesterday and the winching of the capsule aboard the air-craft carrier Lake Champlain, technicians were taking the craft apart to see what was right—and wrong—with it.

After all its troubles with the electric power system, manoeuvring rockets, a balky sighting device, tricky radar and other instruments that conked out, a newsman asked Kraft whether it was, in automobile parlance, "a lemon."

"I think that's a gross over statement," Kraft said with an edge to his voice. "The performance of the spacecraft in our opinion was extremely good. "We had some minor problems . . . the systems per-formed extremely well. In the overall sense, the performance of the spacecraft was extremely good, and I don't think we can say that too often.' When asked what was his most important decision on the eight-day flight and what caused the most suspense.

Kraft replied:
"Both of those (decision and suspense) on the first day when we had to decide whether to bring the spacecraft down. Once we made that decision— and I'd say it was a pretty good one-from then on it was not difficult at all."

Neighbors in Name

tent international quarrels, the contest of India and Pakistan over Kashmir, has been a constant source of concern to those countries which are friends and allies of both the contending nations. Yet despite the often urgent appeals of both India and Pakistan for a sympathetic attitude toward their respective causes by the peoples of the West, the average newspaper reader is probably inclined to say, "a plague on both your houses."

He can find little to excite his support in either cause, and only wishes that these two contentious countries would settle the question amicably and get on with the tremendous job of modernizing their societies

In addition to keeping these two important members of the Commonwealth apart, the quarrel has a direct bearing on the cold war. India has already felt the weight of Red Chinese aggression on its northern border. Pakistan has already lent an ear to Peking's proposals for co-operation in the north. It is obvious that Red China would probably be the chief gainer from an outright conflict between the two neighbors, and hence the repercussions of such a fight would directly affect the West. Russia has helped India with aircraft and food from time to time, and no doubt keeps a close eye on developments in the subcontinent. The continuing open sore in Indo-Pakistani relations is therefore of concern far beyond the Vale of Kashmir. In recent days the quarrel has sharpened. Indian troops have entered the zone heretofore set off by a United Nations cease-fire line. The claim is that this move was made necessary by the sizable infiltration and Pakistan to get on with more of Pakistani guerrilla forces. The

Canada's New 'Leisure Class'

CANADIAN MAYOR, WHO once made headlines by requiring welfare recipients to shovel snow, has repeated his philosophy with minor variations to a Toronto

Speaking on a panel before the Ontario Municipal Association he said: "All able-bodied people on welfare should be forced to take train-We should be more militant about this thing."

The mayor, Mr. Leo Del Villano of Timmins, no doubt has substantial support for his point of view in various parts of the country. But he encounters a challenge from the principal of the Toronto Adult Retraining Counselling Centre, Mr. G. E.

Mr. Armstrong rejects the suggestion of compulsion in a retraining program and asks how thirdgeneration welfare recipients could be made to train for jobs.

His question raises two points. In the first place, if an individual is determined not to learn by retraining, nothing can be done to make him learn. Short of permitting him to go without food or shelterand Canadian society as a whole shows no inclination to take that extreme course - what compulsion can be used on him?

No Immunity on the Road

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA aminations and short road runs are Safety Council reports a dismaying increase of more than 10 prehensive examination will not, in per cent in the motor vehicle accident fatalities recorded during the full solution. As he puts it: "A great first seven months of this year over those for the similar period in 1964.

Coincidentally, Mr. Ray Hadfield, provincial superintendent of motor vehicles, draws attention to the increase in accidents involving motorcycles and points to the necessity of doing something to curb the rise.

Both the highway toll and the motorcycle accident report have elements in common. In each case on the road, if simple arithmetic is to be accepted, there are more chances of mishaps, and consequently more deaths.

There is a need, says the superof testing motorcyclists. Present ex- the road.

ONE OF THE MOST PERSIS- attitude of each country has hardened, and India has made it clear that negotiation of the question will have no success. The only prospect is for increased tension, mounting public antagonism, and perhaps large-scale fighting.

This would be a tragedy for all concerned, and the likelihood that the military operations would lead to widespread religious conflict between the Hindu and Moslem elements of each country only adds to the dangers. The history of communal strife and persecution by the vast religious groups in these countries has been violent and bloody.

The situation clearly calls for energetic action by the United Nations. But both disputants reject, through pride and self-interest, more than a token intervention by the world body. The Commonwealth likewise has been unable to bring its two warring members together and the Kashmir dispute has by now no doubt achieved a position in governmental and public thinking in the two countries which will prevent any peaceful settlement.

To the outside world the issue appears relatively clear and open to a negotiated solution. But India will not forego this piece of terrain, the birthplace of the late Prime Miniter Nehru, and Pakistan will not abandon the predominantly Moslem population. There is, too, the question of important water and hydro power sources in the area. Perhaps a permanent status of disengagement under United Nations jurisdiction may be the only solution for Kashmir. It might satisfy neither contending nation, but would deny to both any label of victor and vanquished. This would not heal the sore but would at least cover it with a skin graft and enable both India fundamentally important tasks.

In the second instance, Mr. Armstrong's question draws direct attention to a reality in this country which few people want to face. He points out that a family history of welfare is producing a small class of Canadians who know nothing else and apparently want nothing else. They are content to get by on what the various levels of government allow them for subsistence.

This development is known to social workers of Canada, who are still seeking a stimulant which will stir the contented welfare case to socially acceptable action on his own behalf and that of his children.

Mr. Del Villano says that Timmins area miners have a take-home pay of $62 a week while welfare recipients can receive between $50 and $70. If this is the case, there seems to be little economic incentive for those content to draw their allotments from the welfare department. They are doing as well as some workingmen.

Our society is generally too humane to lay down the edict: work or starve. We therefore have a problem now. How much larger will it be when automation advances to the point where even the energetic and ambitious workers have to scramble for jobs that require retraining?

An Election to Mark Confederation?

election dates, there has been an underlying assumption — sometimes, indeed, it has been explicitly stated—that if would be unthinkable and almost indecent to sully our centennial year with a political campaign. The fear that we might be driven to this seems to be one of the arguments pressed upon Mr. Pearson by the advocates of an elec-tion now, but those who disagree appear to be haunted by the same dread for they have been busy with mathematical calculations proving that 1966 will be a year spacious enough to accommodate redistribution and an election too.

It seems to me that this notion of the sacrosanct qualities of 1967 is utterly diculous and for a variety of reasons. In the first place Confederation was a political experiment; an audacious at-tempt in the face of seemingly impossible odds to create a second democracy with transcontinental aspirations on the North American continent. We are all getting ready to glow with pride because the impossible worked. Why else are we having centennial celebrations?

How then has the incredible notion arisen that politics would be out of place in a year set apart to honor a political achievement? The only explanation which occurs to me is a best bib and tucker Evidently this is to be an occasion which Liberals and Conservatives should stop glowering at each other and

National Pretence

What could be less appropriate? We are to celebrate what we are by pre-tending that we are something we are not. It can be argued, and often is, that we Canadians are not very strong on culture, except in a B. and B. way. But worst critic could scarcely allege that we have been weak on politics. We are even superior to the Americans, who have their off-years. With 11 governments, all legally free to set their own election dates, the Canadian has an assurance, practically unmatched in the world, that politicians somewhere are working overtime to save his country.

While it may be unseemly to mention the fact, Canadians did not mark their first Confederation year by going to a world's fair. What they did, with shameess disregard for the proprieties, was to go to the polls.

Furthermore, an election in 1867 was not the relatively quiet affair of mod-ern times. The difference was in part qualitative-from all accounts the proportion of voters arriving parched at the polls was much less than it is today. But it was also quantitative. Campaigning aside, the actual business of balloting in 1867 was spaced over no less than 44 days. (Evidently this was not

tion Parliament; the return match in 1872 was spaced over 84 days, accord-

1872 was spaced over 84 days, according to the parliamentary guide.)

One might suppose, in the light of our origins and history, that nothing would be more appropriate than an election in 1967 to demonstrate the continuing vitality of our democratic institutions. Evidently this is not the view held by centennial planners. We may contemplate the politics of 1867 and the government will cheerfully sanction large expenditures to permit the re-enactment for our edification, of the political events of 1867. But it would be unworthy and of 1867. But it would be unworthy and un-Canadian to permit the shadow of politics to darken our 100th year.

The odd thing about all these calculations is that it is not within the power of the government to guarantee us against ordeal by ballot in 1967. Nothing has been more in evidence in recent years than the complete unreliability of the Canadian voter. It was certainly not contemplated by the St. Laurent gov-ernment in the spring of 1957 that we

we had one, all the same. Nor was it contemplated by the Diefenbaker gov-ernment in April 1962 that we would have to have a re-run in 1963. But it happened and for the same reason, Give the Canadian voter a ballot and there the Canadian voter a ballot and there is no telling what he will do.

Even if the federal government, with its new and enlarged stable of sooth-sayers, could provide us with the requisite guarantee, we would remain in political hazard. For we must still reckon with the 10 provincial governments. And the venerable tradition that federal issues (sometimes real, more often imaginary) are ideal subjects for provincial

The concept of the good, clean, whole-some, non-political 1967 seems, on the basis of our past record, decidedly far-fetched. But in a mysterious way it has come to dominate official thinking. Some things are respectable, some are not; and at this distance the thought of politics in centennial year is simply too much Pearson last January 16 are simple enough: Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House ways and means committee, appeared before the House rules committee in time for debate of enabling legisla-tion on the floor of the House. He red a leisurely two months after he had introduced the final form of this legislation in his own committee for formal study, which in turn was a leisurely five months after the agreement was signed.

from the directors of Jubilee Hospital met to discuss the ques-tion of amalgamating the French and Jubilee Hospitals.
The committees finally came to an agreement which will be placed be-fore the full directors of each group. The principal points are that the French society hand over property worth $10,000 on the condition its 67 members have certain privieges at Jubilee. The property will go a long way towards paying debts of Jubi-pass and be signed by the president, but it has taken an embarrassingly long time already and may well be put off until Congress resumes in January.

What is notable so far is the marked lack of warmth of congressmen toward the agreement. Reps. Mills and Byrnes were visibly uneasy and reluctant requesting debating time from Judge Smith. As members of different parties, their empasis was different, but there is one thing that united them and has united other U.S. legislators favoring

Essentially Negative

It is essentially a negative point. As Mr. Mills said, the U.S. was faced with either reaching a joint arrangement with Canada to rationalize the North American automobile industry, or watching Canada take further unlateral action to improve its own position and facing demands for further U.S. retaliation. The present plan, he said, was better for the U.S. than the stiff unilateral measures taken by South Africa, Australia and Mexico to consolidate their own auto industries against trade imbalance with the U.S.

Mr. Byrnes was more outspoken. The agreement, he said, was at least better than retaliation. Things could be even worse than they will be under the agreement. The agreement is really a for undertakings between the automobile manufacturer and the dian government and isn't (Mr. Mills' words) "free trade as we understand it." He said the U.S. should have looked at the whole trade picture and sought Canadian concessions on, say, lumber if Canada was to be accommodated on automobiles. But the U.S. settled for soothing disturbed waters and "it's typical of what we do."

Tariff Effects

Mr. Mills explained the misgivings that made him delay bringing the bill this far. He wanted to see the effect of waiver of auto tariffs by the U.S. from February to June (tariffs have been waived in anticipation of the bill's passage, with its reproactive clause), and he wanted to test the fears of small independent auto parts producers who claimed the big international giants would squeeze them out under the agreement. He found that the U.S. automotive trade surplus with Canada has increased rather than lessened, and that there have been few complaints from the independents.

Mr. Byrnes pointed out that this may mean little after the agreement is ratified and the auto companies start carry-ing out the "rationalization" agreed with the Canadian government. He attached much importance to the statutory review of the agreement's effects in 1968. It is the least of many evils, given the impossibility of Canadian agreement of real , 'free trade.' Therefore it was accepted by Mr. Byrnes, Mr. Mills, their committee, Judge Smith, and his committee.

But without enthusiasm.

UN Aid Program

By M. S. WILDE

A MAJOR streamlining operation in the affairs of the United Nations has become possible with agreement not to challenge the voting rights of 13 mem-ber states (including Russia and France) who have failed to pay their share of the cost of UN peace-keeping efforts. The forthcoming General Assembly will be asked to endorse the creation of a United Nations Development Program. It will combine the work of the UN Expanded Program of Technical Assistance, established in 1950, and the UN Special Fund, established in 1959.

Up to last year the Expanded Program of Technical Assistance had sent 13,000 experts from 90 nations on assignments in 130 countries and territories. It had awarded 30,000 fellowships to nationals of 50 countries and territories for advanced training in 121 host countries. One example of its work was to help one example of its work was to help agricultural research stations in Libya so that they trebled their output of im-proved cereal and vegetable seed, and thus altered the entire farming pattern of the country.

The Special Fund deals mainly with The Special Fund deals mainly with pre-investment surveys. By the beginning of this year it had spent $645 million on 458 projects in 91 countries and territories, and on 27 regional and interregional projects. Its surveys have attracted hundreds of millions of dollars of investment capi-tal. For example, a total outlay of $17 million by the fund and governments concerned on 17 specific surveys, at-tracted $792 million in development

Dam Sites

It helped Nigeria to determine suitable dam sites for the Niger River, and the consequent projects, for which capital was raised from the World Bank, from Italy, The Netherlands, the United States and Britain, will be big enough to meet Nigeria's power needs up to 1982.

But one lesson learned by both the Expanded Program and the Special Fund is that it is no use concentrating on development projects in isolation. They must be integrated, first with the over all development plan of the countries concerned, and also with each other.

As another UN body, the World Health As another UN body, the worst results Organization is never tired of pointing out, it is useless to dig irrigation ditches it these are to become infested with snalls which carry the bilharzia' disease that enfeebles farm workers; or to build an enfeebles farm workers; or to build an industrial plant unless the site is first leared of malaria and other insect-borne

For its part Unesco will say there can be no real improvement in a people's living standards if they remain illiterate. Sociologists now insist that other things Sociologists now insist that other things should be coupled up too, such as social legislation and crime prevention.

Of course, a degree of co-ordination already exists, but the creation of the UN Development Program will enormously enhance its effectiveness.

Single Committee

It will have a single inter-governmental committee as a governing council. It will be served by an inter-agency con-sultative board, including the UN secre-tary-general himself, and the executive heads of all the specialized UN agencies

As under the Expanded Program, "the technical assistance furnished shall ... not be a means of foreign economic and political interference in the internal affairs of the country concerned, and not be accompanied by any considerations of a political nature." In other words:

strings.
Other things being equal, developing countries have almost invariably pre-ferred UN technical assistance to that proffered on a bilateral basis by individual advanced and powerful countries.

The new combination also opens up a fresh perspective. As recommended by the UN Conference on Trade and Development, it may become a means, not only of technical assistance, training and pre-investment surveys, but also of investment proper—thus immensely sim-plifying the hunt for development capital by the many countries in need of it.

McPherson Future

It was with great interest that I read Arthur Mayse's column concerning the of the McPherson Playhouse. I think it would be a tragedy if this ven-ture were to end in failure. The playhouse itself is delightful, and

The playbouse itself is delignitud, and I have been impressed by the high standard of the shows, both professional and amateur, which I have seen there. However, a public which is not used to attending live theatre is not going change its habits overnight. The only hope is for those of us who enjoy going to encourage our friends and acquaintances to go along and see for themselves how much pleasure can be derived from a live theatrical perform--Shirley French, 896 Admirals.

Successful Theatre With regard to all this "argy bargy"

about the McPherson Playhouse, there are just two certain facts which will make for a successful theatre—low prices plus good entertainment, with the possibility of a third, good publicity.

I believe this is the aim of Mr. Peter Mannering and his Bastion Theatre. It is my fervent hope that he succeeds, both for my sake and my children's. The pros-pect of being condemned to unimaginative television with inane commercials and a series of Hollywood epics at ever-increasing prices for the next 20 years or so appals me.

As for the lady who dislikes the critics, who doesn't? That they neither make nor break a show is proven by a classinor break a snow is proven by a tassi-cal example in London during the war. A play called "Worm's Eye View" was panned unmercifully by all the critics; the backers stayed with it and it became the most successful play in London, running for four years to packed houses. It ning for four years to packed houses. It was pure unadulterated corn but the audience loved it. It is a full house responding to good entertainment that makes a show successful and I would suggest Victorians do a little less talking and instead a little more doing.—Joyce L. Wallace, 347 Cotlow.

De Gaulle Flies Over the Storm

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER

PARIS-The French, whose critical spirit is justly celebrated around the world, are growing more restive over the government's restrictive economic policies. But, with a remarkable lack of Gallic consistency, they don't appear to hold President De Gaulle accountable for their plight.

This, at least, is the evidence of two polls whose findings have just been reported. The surveys were made in August by the French Institute of Public Opinion, a priagency often hired by the government to find out how it is doing.

On the economic front, small signals are flying. Some 37 per cent of those polled said they were unhappy with the government's policies, a rise of five per cent

On the other hand, only 27 per cent said they were satisfied. This was a fall of four per cent from last month. The other one-third had no coming up in December, this spartan approach appears al-most heroic. However, austerity is becoming a shade less austere. The government has taken a few cautious measures to lift the lid a little.

Anyway, the man in charge doesn't really have to worry overmuch about the voters. Another poll published by the evening paper France - Soir shows that 61 per cent of the French are pleased with Gen-eral De Gaulle's performance. If anybody is being blamed for the economic state of affairs it appears to be Premier Georges Pompidou. The man most frequently mentioned as most frequenty mentioned as the general's political heir suffered a three-point drop in his popularity rating. Only 42 per cent said they were happy

There is some choice irony in this, Pompidou has been the chief figure inside the government urging economic stimulants. But so far, Gen-eral De Gaulle has been listening more closely to his finance minister, Valery Giscard D'Estaing,

Sunshine Vitamin Clouded

WASHINGTON - A dark cloud of suspicion is hovering over the sunshine vitamin.

The food and drug adminis tration, wary of the effects of large doses of Vitamin D, has proposed a partial ban on the addition of the vitamin to food products such as milk and margarine. It also seeks to curtail drug store sales of the pure vitamin by limiting amounts that may be sold each day.

New Year Every 12 Days

By SANTOSH BASAK

CALCUTTA-Calendars are big business in India. A profusion of holidays makes one a must in every home. It has been estimated, for example, that every 12 days somewhere in India some community or religious group ob-serves New Year's Day. It has been estimated officially that there are 30 or more different calendars use in the country. These in-clude the Gregorian calendar introduced by the British about two centuries ago and one in-troduced by the independent Indian government in 1957. The Gregorian calendar is the one now in use in most of the

The oldest of the Indian calendars is based on a Hindu mythological incident known as the Kali Era. It began in 3102 BC when, Hindus believe, the goddess Kali came to earth to save humanity from destruction by evil forces. The 6,067th year of the era began

New Zealand Goes Against

The Maoris themselves are divided on the question, but many of them maintain that the race still needs its own spokesmen in Parliament to safeguard specific Maori in-

Attacking suggestions that Maori seats should abolished, a leading member of the Labor party, N. E. Kirk, said in parliament that the government wanted to mimic the policy of the nationalist government in South Africa. There the only people who represented colored people were whites.

Opinions on this point vary Some people maintain that just as many Maoris as at present would get into parliament on a common roll. Others claim the race would critically lack spokesmen in

One outstanding case has occurred where a distinguished Maori, Sir James Carroll, represented a white-constituency in parliament for many years. Citizens with some degrees of Many blood can choose whether to regis-ter on the white or Maori roll. At the last election three part-Maoris ran for white seats. None was elected, but one Hanan warned that the time would come when the United Nations would indicate that electoral segregation by separate representation was in-compatible with the concept of an integrated society.

There the matter rests. The government has declined to accept the idea of a fifth Maori seat. But it is taking no active steps on Hanan's suggestion for a timetable for suggestion for a timetable for abolition.

Indications are that no government is likely to pursue the matter until there are stronger demands from the Maoris themselves for a common roll. So far the Maoris are not supporting in substantial numbers the claim that the separate roll is a form of racial discrimination.

Peking Express Rolls Again

Communist incursions in Africa took an inportant n tack this past week, highlighting once again Peking's po complicate life for the West in that area of the cold war.

A team of some 12 Chinese geologists and hydrologists arrived in Tunduma, on the Tanzanian side of the Tanzania-Zambia border, to survey the route and estimate the cost of a possible 1,320-mile railroad linking Lusaka, Zambai, with Dar es Salaam, Tan-

Such a link could change the political and economic face of east and south-central Africa.

It could restore lost mo-mentum to Black African nationalism - the juggernaut which, until recently, was driving southward toward the last remaining island of white rule on the continent, the "white redoubt" of Rhodesia, Portuguese Africa and South Africa. It could alter virtually every important calculation now be-

And the fact that it is Red

China which has set about to move this important piece on the African chessboard could, one day, pay off handsomely in influence for Peking.

The proposed rail line would ompete with, and in all probability supplant, existing lines from Lusaka through Rhodesia to the ports of Beira and Lourenco Marques in Portu guese Mozambique. It would give Zambia (formerly Northern Rhodesia) an important alternative outlet to the Indian Ocean

Fully half of Zambia's gross national product consists of copper and other minerals which are now shipped over those rail lines.

This fact makes her totally dependent on Portugal and Rhodesia.

As a result, Zambian President Kenneth D. Kaunda has been inhibited from using his territory, or permitting its guerrilla operations against Rhodesia and Mozambique. African nationalists want very much to launch such operations. Their historic southward drive toward the "white redoubt" has been stalled by Portuguese armies on the northern frontiers of Angola and Mozambique. Zambia and Tanzania tried to persuade the West to survey and build the new rail-road. Britain at one point offered to pay half (some States were approached for the other half.

It has not yet been forthcoming. This has produced dark suspicions that Washington, Ottawa and perhaps Lon-don are more deeply com-mitted to their NATO ally, Portugal, and to their "econ-omic partner," South Africa, which is the principal target of African nationalism, than they are to self-determination, racial equity, and government by the consent of the gov-erned in southern Africa.

Audrey Price Hangs Up Her Neat Grey Beret

By ELIZABETH FORBES

A career in nursing that has taken her across Canada ends Tuesday for Mass Audrey Price. She takes off her neat grey beret with its white ribbon tab and folds up her matching grey summer uniform

Miss Price is retiring from the Victorian Order of Nurses after 30 years with its various branches. Officially her last day in service is a month away but as September is her an-

Her first work with the N was also in Victoria in 1935. After taking her degree at University of British Columbia she did five months' summer relief here. She then went to Montreal for a year and then to Timmins, Ont., a growing gold mining town of 27,000.
"White I was there I had over 200 confine-

At first Audrey Price was the only VON nurse in Timmins. When she left three years later there were four on staff. Timmins had the first contributory health program in Canada. Married men paid $2.65 a month, single men $1.65. This covered dea month, single filed to the pendents for all kinds of care. The mines paid the VON $5 for each confinement and it was customary for all mothers to have their babies in their homes if the case was normal.

There was only a 100-bed sisters' hospital In Montreal Miss Price was one of 80 on the VON staff. 'Our districts were thickly populated. We had very few cars, so we walked or jumped a street car until 10 at night. After that we called a taxi. We changed districts every two months so we got a variety of patients, French, Jewish, the poor, the well-to-do and even some districts. Comparing the work today with that in the late '30s, Miss Price believes one of the biggest changes is in confinements.

"They are all in hospitals now, and we merely go in when mother and baby return home to plan the infant care."

A note of satisfaction came into her voice when she added: "I've assisted with new babies in some families here five times over." In this city Miss Price also helps in re habilitation work with the aged and the crippled.

"They are good patients," she says, "and very courageous. They don't fuss like so many do in hospitals and they seem a lot happier. Perhaps it is because they are in their

The Price youngsters were among the first pupils in Bank Street School and also in St. Mary's Anglican Church Sunday school.

Audrey Price graduated from Victoria High and took her nurse's training at Royal Jubilee Hospital in the class of 1940. She took post-graduate work at Boston Lying-In Hospital, further work in orthopedics at Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children and in psychiatry at Ontario Hospital in Whitby.

Hospital and private duty work in Powell ver, Victoria and Saint John, N.B., where she was born, came before she joined the VON.

Prime Minister Pearson last week in his visit to city hall assured the clerk he will have so many people coming to him with things to be done after retirement that he will work harder than ever.

Fitness

Although he will be 65 or Sept. 12, Mr. Hunter has the bearing of a man half his age and an obsession for physical fitness that started in boy-hood. He loves fishing, boating and swimming.

His friends and neighbors know him as a tall, spare walker—he hikes to and from work, and at Shawnigan Lake where he has a summer cottage. He runs up and down the Dallas Road waterfront near home like a schoolboy. His weekly distance is around

He has also ran through 12 different mayors dating from Mayor A. E. Todd in 1917, working up to Mayor Wilson. Besides the current mayor four others are still living and three of them were contacted:

Herbert Anscomb said he was both sad that time had passed so quickly to end Mr. Hunter's service to Victoria, and happy that he is still able to speak in his behalf.

"When I first became as-sociated with Mr. Hunter it, was almost 40 years ago—in membered by most our oir, business population, now in their middle 40s. -A period not even re-

"At the period, Mr. Hun-ter, then about 29 or 30 and very young for the position, soon impressed me with his qualities of organizasomething so essential tion, something so essential to the position he occupied, and as the years followed, the efficiency increased."

Mr. Anscomb found Frank Hunter tested and proven by adversity, the great depression of the great depression of the 1930s when 2,500 citizens were without work and had

"It was during this period that Mr. Hunter exhibited to the full his character and ability," carrying out policy that was difficult in-

"He has been of great assistance to me in his knowledge of ceremonial and council procedures, as I'm sure he was to mayors before me."

Great Debt

Ed Williams, a record-holder with 14 consecutive years of aldermanic service to 1949, has known Mr. Hunter

He said:

"Frank is one of the very finest types of man I've ever known."

Judge J. B. Clearihue, University of Victoria chancellor and an alderman from 1925-28, said he has always considered Mr. Hunter "a top man in civic administration. The city owes him a very great debt for all he has done for it."

Frank Hunter's accomplishments, memberships and associations are too many to enumerate: they fill 33 lines of type in a current national directory.

He belongs to a half dozen church and Christian com-munity organizations; he founded the Easter sunrise and summer Sunday services in Beacon Hill Park 22 years ago; he was founder and president of Capital City Speakers' Club; he served three years as president of Municipal Officers' Association of B.C. matched only by ex-municipal affairs deputy Ben Bracewell, and is presi dent of Greater Victoria Citizens' Association.

One of his greatest achievements he considers achievements he considers to be the Hunter Ballot and Voting System, used in Vic-

"It el'minated the chaos of the municipal voting sys-tem." Mr. Hunter recalls. "Tm a little disappointed that bodies like Victoria Labor Council could ask for Labor Council could ask for an updated voting system when they've had a revolutionary system for 35 years."

Another contribution Mr. Hunter recalls with pleasure was his redesign of city council chamber, placing the mayor at the hub of aldermen's desks.

Destroy Design

The new city council cham-ber was adapted from his idea, but the semi-circle be-came a horseshoe, destroying any possibility of expansion without distorting the equal relationship between desks and the mayor's dais.

"I wash my hands of that," the clerk said with feeling. But he predicts council will

"The reason it seems an in-surmountable problem today is that it has been neglected so many years. There should have been more orderly development of the area, allow-

He knows the experience he has gained at city hall would be a great contribution toward further service as a member of council. "But what I would really like is to take a slow boat to China. My wife and I both come from seafaring

The Canada Pension Plan and its benefits

Here is what the Canada Pension Plan will do for people like Steve Sawchuk, a 45-year-old steel mill worker who earns $110 a week ($5,720 a year).

If Steve works full time until age 65 he can look forward to a monthly retirement income of $104.17 from the Canada Pension Plan and $75 from Old Age Security—a total of $179.17 a month. When his wife receives her Old Age Security pension, their monthly income will rise to $254.17.

If Steve becomes disabled after 1970, having contributed until his disability, he will get a disability pension of $103.13 a month.

If, when he becomes disabled, Steve has children under 18 or under 25 and continuing full-time education, benefits of $25 a month for each of the first four and $12.50 for each additional child will be payable. Thus if Steve has five dependent children, the total will be $215.63 a month.

If Steve dies anytime after 1967, having contributed until his death, his wife will receive a widow's pension of $64.06 a month. In addition, orphan's benefits of $112.50 a month will be paid for her five children if they are under 18 or under 25 and continuing full time education. At the time of Steve's death Mrs. Sawchuk will also receive a lump sum payment of $500.

All benefits under the Plan will maintain their value. The actual benefits payable will probably be higher than those given here since benefits will be adjusted to meet changes in living costs and in wage levels before they are paid and changes in living costs after they become payable.

What will the Plan cost you?

If you, like Steve, are employed and have earnings of $5,720 spread evenly over the year, you will, commencing in January, pay at the rate of $1.77 a week until your contributions for the year amount to $79.20. Your employer will pay the same amount.

Lists of supplies needed from Grade 1 to 12 are available at the shop and except for a few changes (they differ a little in each school district) they are quite complete and comprehensive.

BRIDGE LESSON By JACOBY and SON

The great fascination that match point duplicate has Ior most players is that every hand presents a challenge. One little overtrick is likely to make the difference between a good and bad NORTH 30 score. South's three-heart bid was a sort of all purpose call. He did not want to slam and he did not want to go past three no-trump. North's three-spade bid was along the same lines and when South went to three notrump North settled what appeared to be an easy game. The game is easy to make indeed. The spade finesse is on and the clubs break so South starts with eight tricks in the black suits plus both red aces. He also holds two red nope of unding the queen in their partner's hand. This lead gave South his queen of hearts and 11 running tricks. It is also easy to bring home the twelfth trick after that heart opening. South runs off his black cards and West has to make four discards. If he throws two cards in each red suit the play of ace and another heart makes him lead from his king of diamonds.

Some West players might hold three hearts so South will lose two heart tricks if he tries that end play. This means that they will have blanked their king of diamonds whereupon an alert South will lay down the diamond ace and drop the king for 12 tricks.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Tonight's the night for a repeat of the National Drivers' Test which on May 24th last drew one of the largest TV viewing audiences ever to watch one program in North America.

gram in North America.

The CBS-TV produced hour-long show actually puts the viewer in the driver's seat, and invites him to score his points on driving knowledge.

This driver, a know-it-all behind the

There is a forecast that 500 will be killed on B.C. highways by the end of 1965. Each month the toll gets larger so the over-aft figure will be achieved with seemingly little effort unless the motorist becomes aware of the hazards which are with us throughout our driving hours.

The National Drivers' Test will be seen tonight on Channels 7 and 8 at 10:00 p.m. Good Luck.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

(Dorothy Kilgallen is on vacation. Her guest columnist today is planist and recording artist, Cy Cole

By CY COLEMAN

NEW YORK — "How would you like to write a song?"
With this brash question I approached veteran lyricist Dorothy Fields at a songwriters meeting in her home and waited nervously while the writer of such songs as "The Way You Look Tonight," "Remind Me," "I Can't Give You Anything
But Love," "Sunny Side of the Street" and countless others, looked at me and said, "Why not?"

This was the beginning of a collaboration that was destined to go far beyond the tune I had in mind at that moment. A short time later I was out in Hollywood doing the musical scoring for a film called "Father Goose" (thanks to Cary Grant). I received a call from Bob Fosse concerning a new Broadway show for his wife Gwen Verdon to be based on the Fellini film "Nights of Cabiria." Bob wanted to know if Dorothy and I would do the score. It was no contest, I was delighted.

The story was a meaty one, Bob Fosse, who had done many marvelous shows on Broadway including "How To Succeed in Business" and "Little Me" (for which I had written the music) would direct and choreograph. Gwen Verdon is one of the most exciting stars on Broadway. She demonthe show cold for Cole Porter in "Can Can," fractured every-body in "Damn Yankees" and "New Girl in Town" and when she worked with Dorothy Fields in "Redhead." Needless to say, Dorothy quickly joined me in saying yes. The contracts were drawn up between us and the producers Favor. Care and were drawn up between us and the producers Fryer, Carr and Harris and there you have the birth of a new show, "Sweet Charity" starring Gwen Verdon and due to open on Broadway

After fulfilling my commitments in Hollywood, I had previously agreed to score another film, this time for Ross Hunter, called "The Art of Love," Dorothy and I went dilito work.

Giving you a little sneak preview of the show, I honestly believe you will be seeing something new, fresh and exciting on stage. For my part, I have reversed the musical procedure. Usually, Hollywood takes from Broadway. This time I came back to New York with a bag full of newly-learned movie tricks that I will use. For one, in films you give your movie tricks that I will use. For one, in films you give your principal characters different musical themes which keep recurring every time you see them on screen. In "Father Goose," Cary Grant's theme was the song "Pass_Me By" done with ocarinas, in "The Art of Love" there were separate themes for several of the main characters, Dick Van Dyke, Eike Sommers, Angle Dickinson and James Garner. In this show, Gwen Verdon has her very own theme which is inherent in the character she plays and is heard every time she moves in the character she plays and is heard every time she moves so beautifully on stage.

Another tidbit is the use of underscoring (music behind the dialogue) to underline the dramatic effect

In pictures you might see Dick Van Dyke sitting alone at a table. The music will tell you if he's sad, happy, congenial, mean, etc. I remember sitting in the projection room out at Universal Studios with Cary Grant watching a scene in his film "Father Goose" where he is blissfully sailing his little boat. The audience is led to believe he has escaped from Trevor Howard who is an officer in the British navy. The camera suddenly pans away from the little boat and we discover a huge destroyer right behind it.

Cary suggested I use his theme ("Pass Me By") very lightly orchestrated (sort of jaunty, jolly style) for his little boat. Then, when the camera panned over to the destroyer he suggested I suddenly make the music loud and raucous.
This he explained would underline the joke and project what we had in mind clearly to the audience. Now, no one in his right mind is going to argue with Cary Grant's sense of omedy, so I did it exactly that way. It was an exhilarating experience to hear an audience roar with laughter when they saw the scene. The music had added just the proper touch to make the scene work. We will use the same technique in the show.

To medical doctors, it is a delight. To space engin-eers, it is disappointing.

To one and all, it is a puzzling reversal of what they had ex-pected when, eight years ago, it became evident man was going into space.

The human body, whether it belongs to Gordon Cooper of Charles Conrad or a coal miner or a grocery clerk, is basically a fragile thing. .It cannot long stand freezing temperatures. It withers in heat. It gets tired. It becomes hungary or thirsty.

A machine such as the Gemini 5 capsule, on the other hand, is a sort of engineering marvel built to take temperatures from near absolute zero to 3,000 degrees fahrenheit, shocks that perhaps would jolt a tank apart, particles of space "dust" that hit like bullets.

But when they returned after 190 hours 56 minutes in space, astronauts Cooper and Conrad were quite healthy.

Special to the Times

COURTENAY-Peace marchers here have been given a new name—the Peace Martyrs.

They came by the title today when seven of them filed into court to answer charges concerning a weekend sit-down pro-test at Comox RCAF base.

Along with four others charged earlier at the weekend, became the first in Canada to go to court in the cause of nuclear disarmament.

One of the seven accused, young Susan Scott, of Bamfield, on Vancouver Island's west coast, summed up the group's Mortar Fire feelings.

She told Magistrate John-Ry-land: "It is frue that I am guilty of obstructing the function of the base and since that Uneasy Truce was my express function I accept the legal penalty.

"Now, we are only a few who protest symbolically.

"But in the future what will you do when there are hundreds and thousands who realize that Comox base is an instrument of nuclear war?"
